Desde 1978 los perros de toda edad y raza han sido víctimas de parvovirus, una enfermedad muy contagiosa causada por un virus que ataca el tracto gastrointestinal, los glóbulos blancos de la sangre y el músculo cardíaco (corazón).

La forma de contagio del parvovirus es a través de contacto e ingestión de material contaminado por animales infectados. Las heces fecales son el conductor más común de contaminación ambiental.

Los primeros signos de parvovirus son: vómito, diarrea líquida con manchas de sangre, pérdida de peso, deshidratación, baja de glóbulos blancos, fiebre y muerte en las primeras 72 hrs. de la aparición de los signos clínicos.

La atención inmediata del Médico Veterinario es indispensable y debe ser instituida lo más pronto posible, ya que la deshidratación, la diarrea y el vómito, son factores causantes de muerte.

Los perros de cualquier edad pueden contraer Parvovirus Canino, especialmente aquéllos menores de 6 meses, por lo que su Médico Veterinario le recomendará un programa de vacunación adecuado para la protección de su perro.

La limpieza y desinfección del albergue es primordial para la higiene de su mascota. Acostumbre el uso de correas y collares cuando saque a pasear a su perro, evitando así el contacto con los otros animales, o bien, con excreciones contaminadas.

También conocido como moquillo o carré, es una enfermedad extremadamente contagiosa provocada por un virus.

El virus se transmite por contacto directo a través de corrientes de aire y secreciones de perros infectados. La orina y las heces fecales diseminan rápidamente el virus en el medio ambiente, por lo que un perro sano, puede infectarse sin entrar en contacto con un animal infectado.

Los perros adultos pueden contraer la enfermedad; sin embargo, los cachorritos son los más afectados, presentando una tasa de mortalidad por moquillo de más del 80%.

Los signos de enfermedad que presenta el Moquillo son muy variados. Comúnmente el dueño puede detectar los primeros signos: congestión de los ojos, resfrío, lagañas verdes, reducción de peso, vómitos, diarreas y secreciones nasales. En los estados más avanzados el virus ataca el sistema nervioso provocando parálisis parcial o total irreparable.

La protección más segura en contra del Moquillo canino es la vacunación. Desgraciadamente no se ha descubierto una vacuna contra el Moquillo que garantice la protección del perro para toda su vida con una sola aplicación, por lo que la vacunación tendrá que efectuarse programadamente cuando es cachorro y revacunarse anualmente, ofreciendo así, una mayor protección a la salud de su perro.

NOTA IMPORTANTE

Es necesario que nuestros clientes estén conscientes sobre algunos puntos que pueden alterar el efecto de la vacunación de su mascota:

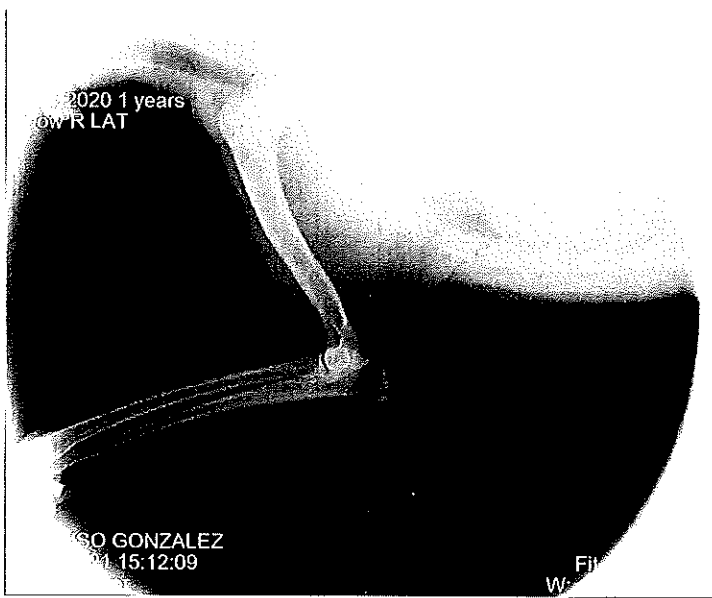

- Si su mascota está incubando un virus al tiempo de la vacunación clínica, los signos de la enfermedad podrán presentarse posteriores a la fecha de la vacunación.
- Cerca del 2% de los animales pueden presentar una respuesta baja de anticuerpos a la vacunación.
- Los anticuerpos maternos pueden interferir con la respuesta de la vacunación dentro de las primeras 6 semanas de vida de su mascota.
- Todas las vacunas proporcionan una protección relativa pero no absoluta.
- Es importante evitar riesgos de exposición a una infección por un periodo de 10 días posteriores a la vacuna hasta obtener una protección completa.
- La revacunación constante a las fechas indicadas es necesaria para mantener la buena salud de su mascota.

La cartilla de vacunación es individual e intransferible, la prevención antirrábica comienza desde los 3 meses de edad, todo refuerzo vacunal es anual y es de suma importancia revacunar puntualmente durante los primeros meses de vida y evitar exponer a tu mascota a lugares de posible contagio. Todo esto hasta haber completado su calendario de vacunación.

En cachorros es común una ligera reacción post-vacunal, ocasionalmente las vacunas pueden manifestar inflamación de bellos, párpados y cavidad oral. Lo anterior es debido a una reacción anafilática y deberá ser notificada a tu médico.

Recuerde traer siempre su cartilla de vacunación a cada inmunización para actualizarla.

Greetings Rob,

Here is the requested purchase order number for Brookshire Police Department's purchase of one (1) narcotic and tracking canine.

As agreed upon, the full amount, minus hotel accommodations for the handler will be paid to Worldwide Canine in two (2) installments.

Your first installment is set at $5,000.00 with Purchase Order #2021-05-07-BPK9-1.

I will gladly send our second purchase order #, once we have a hotel receipt in hand to make the proper subtraction from the remaining balance of $4,500.00.

Thank you for your assistance.
